DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a 1-1/2 story stone house of three bays, with several notable decorative features. On the east facade the flat openings are bridged by two heavy trapazoidal stone blocks supported at one end, by the stonework of the walls and in the center by large keystone blocks. A projecting brick cornice of three courses decorates the eaves; the lower course is a row of headers; the middle course, projecting slightly, consists of bricks set with an edge projecting sawtooth-like; the upper course, projecting still farther, is a second row of headers. These decorative features are repeated on the two-windowed west facade. On the north facade, two small windows flank the chimney; on the south facade is one large central gable window. The stone is roughly laid up with quoining blocks of finer finish.

The interior of the house consists of one lower and two loft rooms. A fireplace with an iron support for the chimney breast dominates the north end of the lower floor. The staircase, opposite the doorway, is boxed in with beaded boards over a mortised frame. The window jambs are paneled. In the loft, a room has been partitioned off in the northwest corner. This partition, as well as the walls, have been lathed to the level of the collar beams, to which the ceiling lath are nailed. A 1" x 8" plain balustrade, supported by 1" x 1" square, chamfered ballusters, runs along the stairwell in the loft. Roof construction consists of rafters, supported on plates resting on the stone wall at the cornice level, purlins and a sheathing of boards.
